

Jennifer Schilling Horvath received her BFA from Alfred University, where she concentrated on Ceramic Sculpture and received her teaching certification. After Alfred, Jenn was awarded an assistantship at Peters Valley Craft Education Center in Layton, NJ. During the following summers she continued her graduate studies under Regis Brodie at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, NY.

Jenn currently works at Phillipsburg High School where she teaches Advanced Pottery, AP Art Studio, Visual Arts and Drawing & Sketching. In the more than fifteen years working at the high school, Jenn has helped coordinate and run special programs, including The Lafayette Art Experience. This program is a unique opportunity for the serious minded high school art student to work alongside professional artists, sharing and collaborating on many projects throughout the school year.

Jenn continues to show nationally and has won many awards.
